

Caroline Tompkins

President and CEO, Forum for International Trade Training (FITT)

Caroline Tompkins is the President & CEO of the Forum for International Trade Training (FITT), a not-for-profit organization dedicated to building the proficiency of businesses, professionals, and students, to access global markets, reduce and manage risks of international trade, and enable profitable competition.

Caroline has experience in both the public and private sectors. Her experience in the educational sector began at Simon Fraser University with the Public Policy Programs division in the Continuing Education department. She is steadfast in her commitment to the continued growth of FITT as a thriving organization for international trade professionals and has cultivated relationships with the any industry and government partners fundamental to its success.

Caroline combines a solid understanding of training with an acute business sense and was recognized as a notable Canadian woman in Chatelaine's Who's Who of Canadian Women and is listed in the Canadian Who's Who publications. In 1999, Caroline was the recipient of the Peter Bentley Scholarship for the University of British Columbia's Residential Programme for Executive Development and has since fulfilled the rigorous requirements for the Certified Association Executives (CAE), and the Certified International Trade Professional (CITP) designations. In 2012, Caroline was presented with the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal.
